

THE TRUNK NUISANCE.

The Extra Work Unnecessarily Imposed on the "Baggage-Smasher."

The happiest, most contented American is he who in his journeying is freed from an encumbrance of trunks. One or two should be sufficient for the average man or woman of moderate size. The well-dressed, the refined, the modest, do not require an outfitter's shop as a part of their daily wardrobe. If it is a fluffy summer girl, whose mission to the seaside or mountain is not for health or enjoyment, but to pose as a milliner's model, or a newly rich matron whose mantua-maker has been given carte blanche and who is aching to shine and outshine, that is another matter, and the number of trunks is not permitted to interfere in her plans.

The other side of this trunk nuisance is the amount of extra work which is unnecessarily imposed upon the vast army of men once known as "baggage-smashers" but now known as baggage men. During this season of the year this branch of the railroad business is greatly overworked. It is exacting, hurried and exasperating labor, and the only wonder is, considering the number of pieces handled during the season that more are not lost or smashed than reports show. The baggage smasher of twenty years ago would stand little show of retaining his place under the present system. The exercise of care and the necessity of reducing damage claims to the minimum has revolutionized, in great measure, baggage handling methods. Where trunks are ruined now it is either because they were of flimsy construction or partly damaged at the outstart.—Philadelphia Press.

Does Not Believe in "Boiler Plate."

(Jewel City, Kan., Republican.)

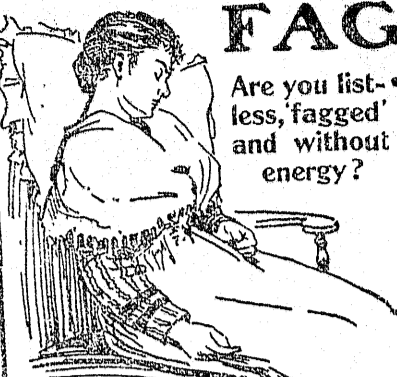

Machine-made editorials are like machine-made sermons and machine-made music. People do not like the hollow boiler-plate sound of such things. They want the human, flesh-and-blood touch of personality and sincerity that is lacking in all machine-made order expressions of opinion and judgment. A paper that has no distinctive coloring, no individuality, no way of its own, would better quit. It is as tiresome as the last speech at a fourth of July celebration.

SUMMER FAG

Are you listless, fagged and without energy?

Have you headache, back pains, or pains in the chest? Have you that "all-gone" feeling? If so, you need a stomach and liver stimulant, and the best is Bileans.

Mrs. R. Saville, of Oakwood, Ont., says:—"For 'Summer fag,' debility, indigestion and biliousness I tried many medicines, but I never met with anything to equal Bileans. They cured me."

Of all druggists at 50c. per box.

Thomas Hardy's First Love.

That Thomas Hardy, although he abandoned his profession of architect to become a writer, has not forgotten his first love, is shown by an interesting paper recently written by him for the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings. The subject was the restoration of churches; and the author, after speaking of the many open abuses in so-called "restoration," goes on to say that were he now practising as an architect he would not undertake to restore an old church under any circumstances. In such an edifice the human interest always ranks before the architectural interest, and therein lies the whole difficulty of restoration. The ideal method, he thinks, would be to enclose the ruined church in a crystal palace and to build a new one alongside—although it is scarcely necessary to say that he does not offer this as a practical experiment.

Glass to Keep Out Heat.

An Austrian inventor, Richard Szgimondy, is reported to have made a new kind of window glass whose chief peculiarity is that it prevents the passage of nine-tenths of the heat of the sun's rays.

It is well known that ordinary window glass allows nearly all of the heat derived from the sun to pass through, but, on the other hand, intercepts all heat coming from non-luminous sources, such as a stove or the heated ground. This is the reason why heat accumulates under the glass roof of a hothouse.

If covered with Szgimondy's glass a hothouse would, it is claimed, become a cold house, since the heat could not get into it.

Ubiquity of the Human Hog.

The seasons pass in opulent procession, parties and governments succeed each other, thrones totter, dynasties peter out, but the human hog survives all change and accident. He is as superior to argument and denunciation as the whisky drinker is to prohibition laws or the gambler to municipal persecution. He does not limit his activities to street cars. He is omnipresent, pervading, indomitable. No pentup Utica confines his evil powers. He ravages alike the public vehicle and the private drawing-room. He is everywhere, like high temperatures, mosquitoes and bad smells.

Needlework's Wages.

The apprentice in dressmaking has to work six months for nothing or perhaps a mere pittance as errand girl. Then she starts on linings at $4 per week. Next, she does over-sewing and finishing at $6. Trimmers on skirts or waists receive $12 to $14 per week, and fitters from $15 to $18. A small establishment is considered better than a large one for learning the trade, as more personal attention is given apprentices and there is quicker advancement. Any woman who sews neatly by hand or does fine embroidery along popular lines can secure a position in a shop without difficulty, and the fall rush in dressmaking opens up Sept. 1.

A girl with the shopping gift can usually secure a position with a dressmaker as shopper. Her first duties consist of matching thread, buttons, linings, etc., and later she is entrusted with trimmings, laces, etc. She starts at $4 per week, spends most of her time in stores and usually becomes a professional shopper.

Operators in suit and waist factories do piece-work principally, and as a rule make $12 per week. Finishers, who sew on buttons, etc., receive no more than $7 per week.

In underwear factories, girls start the trade by running ribbon through beading, ironing, running buttonhole machines, and gradually learn to sew on insertion, tucking, etc. They quickly work up to $8 per week. An expert in underwear makes $12 or $14 per week.—Anna Steese Richardson in Woman's Home Companion for August.

Big Price for a Rare Coin.

One of the rarest American coins is the $5 gold piece of 1822. One of these coins sold the other day for $2,165. The last owner of this particular coin had paid only $6 for it. Not until about twenty years ago did it become known that the half eagles of 1822 coinage were scarce enough to be classed among coins that command fancy prices because of their rarity. There were 17,796 of them minted, but at the present time only three of them are known to exist. Besides the one just sold there is one in the coin cabinet of the Philadelphia mint and another in the private collection of Virgil M. Brand.—Nashville, Tenn., Banner.

Urging a New Secession.

(Texas Medical Journal.)

In Texas the negro is not eligible under our bylaws either to state or county medical societies and can never be affiliated with the medical profession of Texas. The southern people—the medical men of the south—cheerfully accord to him all that is coming to him. We grant him all civil, political and religious rights, but the line is drawn—and will never relax—at social and scientific affiliation with him. The time has come for the southern states to secede from the American Medical association and establish a southern medical confederacy.

Gentlemen,—In June, '98, I had my hand and wrist bitten and badly mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth cuts refused to heal until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using. The effect was magical; in five hours the pain had ceased and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.

Making War on a Pest.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

The gypsy moth, if it is not checked in the east, will certainly within a few years overpread the entire country and each state will be confronted with as difficult a problem as that with which Massachusetts has been struggling for a long time. The pest reproduces themselves at an incredible rate and if Massachusetts has not succeeded in exterminating them the other states should at least be grateful to her for having retarded the advance of the tree destroyers. In Massachusetts there is a uniformed forest police, which devotes its entire time to seeking out and destroying moths, caterpillars, pupae and eggs. It entails a great expenditure of money, but the old bay state is not willing to see its woods denuded without vigorous resistance.
