METHODISTS CONDEMN DANCING AT SCHOOLS

The following resolution, re social amusements among home, high and continuation schools, was unanimously adopted at a meeting of the Ridge town district, held last week at Highgate:

"We the members of the Ridge town district of the Methodist church, having had our attention called to the practice of high schools and continuation schools in certain sections of the district ending their field day sports with a public dance, wish to express our disapproval of such a practice. We believe it to be a serious impropriety on the part of the management of the schools that institutions supported by the community for educational purposes should permit under their auspices a form of amusement that by a considerable number of its patrons is considered decidedly evil in its tendency. Further, if such a practice represents the ideals and intelligence there fostered the reputation of the institutions is injured as a proper place for the higher culture of our young. To make it appear to be reasonably courteous to the entertaining school that young people from 12 to 18 years in a strange town, without any provision for their billet, should be expected to loiter around from 5 to 9 or 10 o'clock at night, midnight and after, and then seek their home 10 or 15 miles away, certainly does not represent intelligence, does not even represent sanity, to say nothing of the moral feature involved, and we would, therefore, request the secretary to bring this matter to the attention of the schools concerned."

THE PREMIERS' 24th

Premier Drury was a busy man on the 24th. Accompanied by Mrs. Drury he visited Orono, Millbrook, Bendley and Omeene, speaking at all the centres, and at Bendley unveiling a monument to the late Joseph Scriven, author of "What a friend we have in Jesus." At Omeene he defended the course he had taken in connection with the Civil Servants' Superannuation Bill.

In his address at the unveiling of the monument, Premier Drury said in part: "I am glad to be called upon to do honor to a man who has contributed a thought to humanity that will go on enriching the lives of men when other things of a material nature have crumbled to dust and perished. Joseph Scriven is one of those who is remembered by what he has done. He did good, but he did more than that—he contributed a thought that will for thousands of years meet a need that implanted in every human breast, and has made immortal a need that we shall never get away from."

"We are living in an age of materialism," he continued, "and we are in danger of forgetting that there are some things greater than material things, and that man is dependent on a higher power than a human. To this need of every human heart Joseph Scriven gave expression, and the thought enshrined in the beautiful words of his hymn will go on and on, and touch the lives of millions he knew nothing of. We are here to do honor to a man of humble station, who was not worldly wise, but who was left behind him a record that any man might be proud to have accomplished." Mr. Drury then unveiled the monument.

The funds for the monument were secured by the Rev. W. D. Lee, of Millbrook, and some friends of the late author.

How Times Have Changed.

With the hotels now selling ice cream cones over the bar where formerly high explosives banged like torpedoes every time a cork was pulled, and with all the other hotels in town serving chocolate bars and chewing gum over the mahogany where once the sizzling suds were shoveled to thirsty souls by the bar tenders' union, demonstrates how times have changed since two per cent was first put on the market. Sports with hats filed over one eye and big black cigars protruding from their faces no longer lean their manly chests against the rail and call on the bar-keepers to their woe. Soda waters and ice-cream so cool the spirits down that a man don't feel like painting the town red after partaking generously of this dope. With his clothes loaded down with chocolate bars, children greet rather than shun dad when he comes from the bar, and even wifey, who has a sweet tooth isn't adverse to seeing hubby drop in with all he can carry of the bar-tenders' wares. "Ten nights in a bar room" has lost its gloom and is now suggestive of a long sleep near the sugar barrel. The old red nose brigade that used to loiter around the bar waiting for somebody to give them the sign to move forward, have disbanded, and even the hotel keepers are not sorrowing over the dispersion of these bums and loafers either. It's like a pink tea around a modern bar and men are now chewing gum and coughing in their handkerchiefs where once they were too wobbly to spit straight at the cuspidor.

UNEXPECTED RESULTS FROM PROHIBITION

What beneficial effects were promised as a result of prohibition, it was generally conceded that it would not boom the grape industry.

Nothing short of ruin was predicted for the Californian vineyards, representing an investment of seventy million.

But apparently the lover of the invigorating juice has decided that if he cannot have the fermented extract he will take the whole grape.

Grapes sold for the manufacture of wine brought $20 per ton. Dried grapes are now selling as high as $40 per ton.

In spite of the "bone dry" law in the United States, the great vineyards on the Pacific slope will be cultivated on a larger scale than ever before.
